Introduction to Neural Networks

Neural networks are computing systems inspired by the biological neural networks.

They learn to perform tasks by considering examples without task-specific rules.